A modern chrome sliding rail shower system is mounted on a wall of small, square, light-colored tiles. The system consists of a vertical chrome rail with a square showerhead at the top and a soap dish at the bottom. A flexible chrome hose connects the showerhead to the rail. The showerhead has a grid of small nozzles. The soap dish is a flat, rectangular plate. The rail is mounted with two brackets, one at the top and one at the bottom. The background wall is covered in a grid of small, square, light-colored tiles.
